This medicine, combining Iron with pure vegetable extractives, is a powerful tonic. It cures Hypertrophy, Indigestion, Weakness, Anemia, Blood, Malaria, Colds and Fevers. It is an unerring remedy for Diseases of the Liver, Gall-bladder, Kidneys, Bladder, &c. It is invaluable for Diseases peculiar to Women, and all who lead sedentary lives. It cures all forms of Catarrh, Neuralgia or produces constipation—other Iron medicines do this by the use of Tartaric Acid. The British troops are now using it in preference to the assimilation of Food, reduces Heartburn and Belching, and strengthens the Nerves. For Internal Fevers, Inflammation, Lack of Energy, &c. It has been a valuable trade mark and crossed Red Horseshoe. Take no other Bitter than this.

Medicated Well-Water.

A Specific for DYSPEPSIA and

DISEASES OF THE KIDNEYS.

I have been used with most gratifying success, in many obstinate cases. Prof. F. Clark, professor of Chemistry at the University of Louisville, and the physician to the same class with that of the Allegheny College, has written to me that my specific is too well known to be stated here.

The water which I desire to try this famous water is to be found in the city of Cincinnati, Ohio. Captain C. M. Holloway, Cincinnati, Ohio, proprietor, can be reached by telegraph, in half hours time by

STEWART IN THE DESERT

BADLY WOUNDED BUT STRONGLY ENTRENCHED AT METEMNEH.

GORDON ALSO HEARD FROM

Terrible Battle With the Swarming Rebels—Two Correspondents and Lord St. Vincent Slain—The Story of the March—Louise Rejoicings.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—A dispatch from Gen. Wolseley, dated Kuria, has just been received at the war office. He states that a courier, who was sent back by Gen. Stewart shortly after the battle at Abu-Kies Wells, has arrived. In his report Gen. Stewart had entrenched at Metemneh. Stewart was badly wounded in the battle. After the battle he at once set to work to repair and soon succeeded in strongly entrenching his position. The principal engagement of the day had taken place in a number of places on the British works, but he had been repulsed with heavy loss. Five of the Mahdist shins were killed in the fight.

Gen. Wolseley's report also reports the arrival of Metemneh by the British. It also says that Sir Charles Wilson has gone to Khartoum on board a steamer to confer with Gordon. It is expected that he will return as soon as possible and report personally to Wolseley.

An official despatch was received from Gordon, which shows that his position at Khartoum is by no means as desperate as supposed.

He says he could hold out there for years.

A dispatch from Cairo, dated Jan. 26, says that Lord Charles Herries had a small contingent in position on Metemneh to Khartoum.

The official despatch indicates that the march of Stewart and his little army from Metemneh to Kharoum was a difficult task.

In fact, the national and state democratic committees made the Hoffman house their headquarters during the campaign to make that the favorite residence of a certain class of politicians.

It is a well-known fact that Senator Gorman is a continual guest at the Hoffman house.

The Hoffman house is a family residence, and it is known as a family resort, and would comport better with presidential dignity than the more palatial hospitality in which Ed Stokes shines.

The exertions occasioned by the expedition to Kharoum were so great that the fate of General Stewart, who has been lost, was completely obliterated by the news that Stewart had captured Metemneh, and succeeded in communicating with General Gordon. Great enthusiasm prevails over the congratulations over the success of Stewart's expedition have been received at the war office.

The wounded men and baggage train were left under guard until quickly built earthworks were erected, and the force was concentrated upon them. At the same time the rebels advanced along the British camp.

The rebels did not stop, however, but continued on, and were soon within sight of the British camp.

IS IT SO?

Elder Bullock's—What times are we called hard, dull, & the daily chores of failures throughout the land bear speaking testimony. When we enquire for the cause the answer is "over-production." Then over production of food means that every man, woman and child has more than enough and over-production of fabrics more than they can wear. Is this so? If so, why so? Has not the administration of the past twenty years been robbing and defrauding a nation of "innocents."

RICOHACCA.

"That's a good gun of yours, stranger," said a backwoodsman; "but uncle Dave has got one that beats it." "Ahl how I wish I had a trade for a charge gun. No, shot up?" "I don't use shot or ball either," answered uncle Dave to himself. "Then what do you use, uncle Dave?" "I shoot salt altogether. I kill my game so far with my gun, that with-out salt the game would split before I could get it."

It's just a step oh
Down the steepish, steepish,
The way is quite steepish,
That leads to the deepish,
Lay down your gun, boy,
Just by the day-poll,

In a store next door, sees-pot,
Holds a gun, good as pot.

CHICAGO'S TICHBORNE
A MYSTERIOUS YOUNG MAN CLAIMING A LARGE ESTATE.

Tale of a Vassar Girl—Ensnared and Deceived by a Drummer—Rescued by Her Father—A Religious Tidal Wave Sweeps Pennsylvania Towns.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Public attention was attracted to the death of Mrs. Clara C. Peck, a young woman who had been dead for six months, and the foundation of a home for incurables. The day after the publication of Mrs. Peck's will a rumor of the existence of a grandson and heir who was saving his plane to build a will came from the Peck executors, at whose house she had resided for many years, averred a broad truth that she had no surviving grandchild. But this young man, who was trying to prove his claim, by presenting himself in a week or two in living confirmation of that avowment. He has always been known as George Peck, and himself the legitimate child of Mrs. Peck, who died in 1863. Lawyers have been at work upon the case for some time, and if the discoveries which they claim have made are authentic the young man's claim is well founded. The Peck family abounds with numerous complications and dramatic incidents of a kind more frequently found in the pages of romances than in the theatre of actual life. Should the boy's claim be established the test of his worth as they now live will be a trial of great interest to be looked for, and, as the greater part of his narrative is毫不truthful, the lawyers will need their most critical judgment to determine whether happened a portion of a century ago to disconfirm between fiction and reality.

The boy, George, claims to have been born during the life of his father, George E. Peck, and to have lived with his mother until her death, in 1863, when he was about three months old. There is no question that the boy did live with his mother during his infancy and childhood, but it is asserted by many persons that he was not her child. The story goes that she was a widow, having lost her first husband, and that she married again, and that by this second marriage she became pregnant, and he passed some months that during this interval she encouraged the supposition that all her children were dead, and, when she took George from the asylum again, gave it to him as her son. A lawyer has said it is claimed that she either gave or offered the house and lot to one Colburn woman to induce her to hold her tongue, and that by this means she succeeded in suppressing the truth. To establish the identity of the boy under examination, the records of the wife's former strong evidence, but his friends believe they are in possession of it.

They profess to have found the woman who was present at the birth and the priest, and the records of the hospital, and the woman who washed and dressed him when he came into the world, observed certain signs and marks upon his person by means of which, though she had never seen him from that day to this, she can recognize him. The boy's mother is now dead, and the chain of evidence is complete and irrefragable. The friends of Mrs. Peck say the whole story is a plot to get money, and the boy begins to hear whom they are trying to pass off upon the public for their own purpose.

The Prestigious Drummer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—Miss Edith Miller, a beautiful girl of eighteen years, graduated from Vassar college last summer, and returned to her home in Marquette, Mich., where her brother, Horatio Miller, a member of a well-known family, is a man of several hundred million dollars, and very wealthy. Soon after the young lady returned home a Pittsburgh drummer named Herman Meldrum, whom she met in Louisville, turned up in Marquette, and, finding that she was engaged to another, at her father's wishes, the young couple eloped in October last. The parents were stricken with grief and search was everywhere made for Edith. In December, Mr. Miller heard that Edith was in San Francisco, and had written to him once again. After a long search he found her, and his great alarm killed him when he discovered that she was an inmate of a den of rogues. His first impulse was to leave her at once, but he was so deeply attached to her at home, anxiously awaiting her return induced him to take back his now penitent daughter, and a couple of days ago they started for Michigan. It was the old old story. Meldrum had promised to marry her firmly, and after reaching this city he deserted her. The last word of the drummer he was in Denver, Colo.

Religious Tide Waves.

READING, Pa., Jan. 29.—A great religious wave is sweeping over society here. Berks County, and the surrounding hamlets have already been converted. The upheaval is reaching all classes of society. Preaching Elder Dickenson, of Philadelphia, is the moving spirit at three meetings, which are held every evening. On Saturday evening, a small, over-weight person has given up his religion. There is only one person in the village who remains unconverted, and he is an invalid. The people drive together for miles to attend these meetings, and the meeting houses are usually lined with carriages. The hotels have voluntarily stopped selling drinks. At Jolietta, near here, some sixty persons were converted on one night. Entire villages have become praying communities. The people are giving up their sins, and the hotels are doing no business. A sect known as the Meemontie Brethren in Christ have organized in many small towns. They baptize by immersion. The converts come from the members march from the river in a body, singing, headed by the deacons who carry axes with which to chop away the ice, which is frequently ten inches thick.

The Hocking Investigators.

CORINTH, O., Jan. 28.—A portion of the Hocking valley investigating committee says that work will be commenced by digging the valley Thursday or Friday. Testimony will be heard on both sides, and then be published by the state. This is all that will be done with it. The committee has agreed to submit the reports printed to the people and let them decide as they please.

Will Resist the Tax Collector.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—An official dispatch from Aspinwall (N. M.) board of trade says that it is necessary to resist the collection of the tax for the erection of territorial buildings at Santa Fe, N. M., upon legal advice that the act authorizing the tax is illegal.
